Does Freyr battery have a Giga America plant?

Freyr Battery has begun construction of its "Giga Arctic" factory in Norway, which is the template for its planned "Giga America" plant in Georgia. European lithium-ion battery upstart Freyr Battery is deepening its transatlantic ties, lured to the US by lucrative incentives that have unleashed a clean energy manufacturing renaissance.

Is Freyr building a Gigafactory in Norway?

FREYR is already building a Gigafactory in Norway – the Giga Arctic project in Mo i Rana, and has plans for industrial-scale battery cell production in Vaasa, Finland. The company's objective is to install 50 GWh of annual battery cell capacity by 2025, 100 GWh by 2028, and 200 GWh by 2030. (USD 1 = EUR 1.005).

Will Freyr build a Gigafactory in Georgia?

Freyr plans to build out a $2.57 billion gigafactory complex in Georgia, as seen in this rendering taken from a project video (viewable below). Freyr, a publicly traded company with Norwegian roots, is set to build a nearly $2.6 billion battery plant in Newnan to meet an anticipated spike in demand for energy-storage systems in North America.

Will Freyr get funding for a new battery plant in Georgia?

Freyr will also apply for U.S. Department of Energy funds including grants or loan assistance, perhaps under the bipartisan infrastructure bill, which has already underwritten other battery-related projects in Georgia. A 368-acre site in Newnan's Bridgeport Industrial Park has been purchased for the 34 gigawatt-hour plant.

Is Freyr seeking a US Energy Department loan guarantee?

In addition, Freyr said is seeking a US Energy Department loan guarantee for the next phase of the Georgia complex. It has not disclosed details of the proposed debt financing but said the net present value of the two phases of the US plant are about $8 billion.
