Ghana's China-backed Green Energy Projects Play it Small and ...

The Bui Power Authority (BPA) in Ghana recently launched a new solar farm that's connected to a Chinese-built hydroelectric dam. The idea here is that when water levels run low and power generation dips, the solar farm kicks in to make up the difference. It's kind of like a hybrid car that seamlessly draws on both battery power and a combustion engine.

Identification and analysis of barriers to the implementation of Ghana's economic growth and development hinge on accessing affordable and reliable energy sources. Solar photovoltaic (PV) technology appears promising due to Ghana's abundant solar resources. However, despite the nation's ambitious renewable energy goals outlined in the national master plan, these aspirations remain largely unfulfilled.

Off-Grid Solar Market Assessment Ghana

Ghana's off-grid power sector is characterized by government policies and donor-funded projects that stress government ownership of energy assets. It is also shaped by private solar home systems (SHS) companies that directly serve consumers. Both government- and company-led approaches are complicated by Ghana's high, 84 percent, nation electrification rate,¹ as ...
