Did the European Commission breach the rights of people in Western Sahara?

The European Court of Justice ruled on Friday that the European Commission had breached the right of people in Western Sahara to self-determination by concluding trade deals with Morocco.

Is the EU getting a 'flash in the Pan' on Western Sahara?

This is far from a flash in the pan. In 2018, the CJEU ruled that the EU's aviation agreement with Morocco did not cover Western Sahara, leaving EU carriers (which continue to operate flights to the territory) in a regulatory vacuum. Even the European Commission appears to be getting the hint.

Will EU-Morocco trade agreements extend to Western Sahara?

For the fifth time, it has rejected efforts by the Council of the EU and the European Commission – which are jointly responsible for the EU's trade relations – to extend the provisions of the EU-Morocco agricultural and fishery agreements to the territory of Western Sahara.

Does the EU support Western Sahara self-determination?

The EU's highest court has again backed Western Sahara self-determination. It is now time for the EU's political institutions to bring their policy into line with the law – for the benefit of regional peace. What is the Western Sahara conflict is all about, and how will the most recent developments between Morocco and Spain influence this conflict?

Why has the EU subordinated its Western Sahara policy to Morocco?

(A declaration that incidentally proved irrelevant to the Court's deliberations). The EU has subordinated its Western Sahara policy (and Sahrawi self-determination) to its desire to develop and maintain close bilateral relations with Morocco.

Did the European Union 'infringe' the rights of the Sahrawi people?

Claiming to act 'on behalf of the Sahrawi people', the applicant argues, inter alia, that by approving the agreements at issue through the contested decisions without the consent of the people of Western Sahara, the Council infringed the European Union's obligations in the context of its relations with Morocco under EU and international law.

The Court had already nullified the application to Western Sahara of both the EU-Morocco trade and fisheries agreement, in 2016 and 2018, respectively. The Court then argued that Western Sahara is a "separate and distinct" territory over which Morocco has no sovereignty or administering mandate. As such, the EU's deals with Morocco can

Western Sahara Resource Watch , The EU court cases

27 February 2018 - The Court of Justice of the European Union concludes that the EU-Morocco Fisheries Partnership Agreement with Morocco cannot be applied to Western Sahara, as that territory does not fall under Moroccan "sovereignty or "jurisdiction", and is not part of "Moroccan fishing zones" - a notion used throughout the
